Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rennie were honored Tuesday evening, when about 75 friends of the Evangelical Church paid them a surprise visit in honor of their golden wedding.

A program of musical and vocal selections was given and addresses of congratulation and good wishes were given by Messrs. M. Clemens, H. M. Reiter and the Rev. H. J. Wood, who spoke of the respect in which Mr. and Mrs. Rennie were held in the community and especially in the Evangelical Church, with which they have been connected ever since it was established in this district.

Mr. F. S. Spies presented them with a purse of gold as a token of appreciation from members of the church. They were also the recipients of many other presents.

Mr. C. F. Rennie and Miss Anna Christine were united in marriage at New Hamburg, Ont. on Nov. 21, 1883.

For 19 years they farmed near New Hamburg and came to Didsbury in 1902 and homesteaded about 7 miles west of Didsbury, becoming the earlier pioneers of the Westcott district.

They retired from the farm about three years ago and have since resided in Didsbury.

Three sons and two daughters were born of the union. Percy, Herbert C. and J. Wilfred of Didsbury, Mrs. J. F. Carlson of Glendale, California, and Alice at home. There are also three grandchildren.

During their 31 years residence in this district they have earned the respect of the whole community.

Mr. Rennie interested himself in local affairs and has been secretary of the Vermont school for over 25 years and was a member of the board of trustees up to the time of his moving to town.

Mr. Rennie is 77 years and Mrs. Rennie is 72 years. We join the whole community in wishing them many more years of happy married life.

Art Exhibition Is Appreciated

Much interest was taken in the exhibition of antiques and art which was sponsored by the local chapter of the I.O.D.E. on Saturday last. There was a continual stream of visitors throughout the afternoon.

There were many articles of real interest to the older residents of Didsbury. The minutes of the first meeting of the Didsbury school district held in January 1902, the picture of Didsbury's first school, and the first volume of the Didsbury Pioneer, published in 1903, perhaps attracted the most attention.

A large collection of old books, shells and other objects from the collection of the late Mr. C. W. Peterson, was a very interesting exhibit.

Another fine exhibit was the collection of handcraft done by the natives of West Africa, contributed by Mrs. Finlay, who was a missionary in that country.

The exhibition as a whole was extremely interesting and it is hoped that the ladies will give a similar exhibition at a future date.

Tea was served during the afternoon and was very well patronized.

Initiative

Initiative, or the lack of it, the development or the denial of it, appear to be quite common subjects of discussion in these days of the Great Depression. On the one hand, people are heard to say that adoption of the programme of the Socialists would result in the destruction of individual initiative, while, on the other hand, exponents of Socialism ask what initiative is left to people these days, and what initiative has an unemployed man substituting on Government relief?

Both are wrong. Socialism could not destroy individual initiative even if it would, because initiative is an attribute of the human individual, and it can be, has been, and always will be developed under any conceivable kind of government, or system, or set of circumstances. Initiative is God-given and cannot be destroyed, although its expression in definite action may be hindered, even for a time prevented.

Nor is it correct to say that present day conditions are destructive of initiative, and that there is no room for its exercise by many people at this time. Rather, the reverse is true. Necessity is said to be the mother of invention, and invention is only possible where initiative is first displayed. The necessities of the present are, therefore, an urge to greater rather than less initiative.

Not only so, but evidence is not lacking, rather it is available on every hand, demonstrating the fact that greater initiative is being manifested by thousands of hard pressed individuals than they ever thought of exercising in the days of prosperity.

After all, what is initiative? A simple dictionary definition says it is an introductory act or step; the first active procedure in any enterprise; power of taking the lead or of originating. That is, a baby shows initiative when it begins to creep, and more initiative when it takes its first toddling steps, and from that time onward through life. It cannot be destroyed.

But it can be encouraged, or discouraged; its development can be assisted or retarded. Parents and teachers have a very great responsibility in this respect. Employers, too, have an obligation in much the same way towards their employees, and if they are far-sighted they will realize that it is to their own advantage, as well as promoting the advancement of the employee, to encourage and assist their workers to display initiative in the tasks allotted to them. While it may be true, as sometimes charged, that Capitalism operates in some ways to lessen initiative, it is also true that in quite as many other ways Capitalism has promoted initiative.

Governments, too, under whatever system may be in vogue in a country, may develop the initiative, not only of individual citizens, but of a whole people and country. Too much paternalism in a home is a deadly influence upon the development of the initiative in a child, weakening its self-reliance, and sapping its courage. In like manner too much paternalism in government operates as a deadly influence upon the citizenship of a country, weakening the self-reliance of the people, and sapping their courage to meet the inevitable obstacles and difficulties which sooner or later in life must be met and, if success is to be achieved, overcome.

Referring back to our dictionary definition of initiative—that it is the power of taking the lead or of originating—the truth must be impressed upon us that in the final analysis, it is the individual that must originate. In any great enterprise, or undertaking, in any large corporation, it is some one individual who first originated the idea to the development of which the organized forces of all are finally directed. Governments are only groups of individuals, and their policies have their birth in the minds of individuals, and their acts of administration are but the carrying into effect of a policy resulting from the initiative of some individual in the first instance, the wisdom and value of which is ultimately recognized by all.

A man or woman lacking in initiative never gets very far. If they are content to let others do their reading, study and thinking for them, then they will never become educated. If they are willing to lean upon others, and rely upon the judgment of others for decisions that may have to be made, then they will always be dependents, and never independent. If they refuse to exert themselves, to express themselves, they will go through life bereft of the influence they might and ought to have exercised upon their times and fellowmen.

Initiative is a power, let it be repeated, that all possess. But like all powers it must be used, exercised, brought into play. Only so is it of any value, and only so can it be developed, and made to be the rich thing in the lives of the individual it might be used, and only so can the rewards it is designed to bring to its possessor be won. It is a great gift, an imperishable gift, which should be highly prized, never surrendered, nor allowed to fall into disuse.

Science Comes To Aid

Can Help Narcotic Addicts To Overcome The Habit

Science has found a solution to the problem of the narcotic addict who attempts to free himself of the habit, anesthetists of the United States and Canada were told at their annual congress recently in Chicago.

Three New York anesthetists related their success in blocking nerves by means of alcohol injections effective for days and even weeks, thus relieving the patient of the torture of fever, nausea, vomiting and other symptoms inevitably associated with stopping the use of a narcotic.

Most of the cases were those of persons who had contracted the habit as the result of intense pain during sickness or injury. Dr. M. B. Greene of New York explained, adding that it was a different when the subject used narcotics from desire and was not interested in breaking the habit.

ARM IN SLING WITH NEURITIS

A "token of gratification" this woman says she is giving when she writes of her relief from neuritis:—"For twelve months I have had neuritis in my arm, and up till the last two weeks have had to carry it in a sling. Since then I have abandoned all my slings and am able to sleep undisturbed, and can perform household duties that previously I would not have done. These benefits I have received from Kruschen Salts. This has all happened in two weeks, and I am now free from the pain that in the other fortnight I shall have said good-bye to neuritis once and for all. Call this a testimonial, you choose, but to me it is a token of gratification." — (Mrs.) N.E.L.

Neuritis is a result of impurities in the blood, and it is impure blood, circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues, that causes those excruciating pains. Kruschen Salts can be safely trusted to set the matter right. Because Kruschen contains just what Nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, normal condition.

Coffee and beef not being so much in favor as years gone by Argentina is beginning to raise peanuts on a rather large scale. In the past crop year production amounted to 195,000-529 pounds as compared with 129,328,450 pounds in the 1931-32 season, an increase of 33.3 per cent. The area harvested amounted to 193,393 acres an increase of 66.6 per cent. The average yield per acre was 8925 pounds.

Sees Marked Improvement

United States Banker Finds Conditions In Britain Better

Quite talkative about the marked improvement in British business conditions was J. P. Morgan, United States banker, on his return to New York from an extended visit to Great Britain.

While silent on various questions put to him concerning the domestic situation here the N.R.A., now banking laxity and inflation, Mr. Morgan did emphasize that England had turned the corner away from hard times.

"England is getting on very well. Improvement certainly is well set in there. The heavy industries are showing improvement and the whole feeling there is that things are better and improving."

New Submarine Chaser

Royal Air Force Machine Will Be Stationed At Malta

The first Royal Air Force flying boat carrying a quick-firing gun, capable of firing shells, in addition to ordinary machine guns, has been completed by the Blackburn Airplane Company at Brough. The craft is designed principally for submarine chasing.

The new gun, which is mounted on a rotary turret in the forward cockpit, can fire 100 rounds per minute one and one-half pound shells over an effective range of 1,500 yards. The shells are held in clips of five. The connection from firing all five rounds in quick time is said to temporarily reduce the forward speed of the flying boat by ten miles per hour. The experiment of mounting the gun whose recoil—representing a pull of 1,600 pounds which has to be absorbed in the boat's structure—will be switched with keen interest by air forces of several nations which are concerned with the same problem.

The machine will be able to fly 132 miles per hour with a maximum range of 1,500 miles. The wing spread is 97 feet and the length is 70 feet. It stands nearly 26 feet high. The new ship, named "Blackburn Perth," is one of four to be stationed at Malta.

Does Not Produce Chancellors

Only Two In Last Hundred Years Born In Scotland

Where do the Chancellors come from? Scotland claims so many of the Premiers and Archbishops of Canterbury of recent years that it would not be surprising to find the Northern Kingdom providing a good proportion of Chancellors of the Exchequer as well, especially in view of the Scottish genius for looking after the backbenches. In reality, however, only two Chancellors in the last 100 years were born in Scotland—Sir Robert Horne and the first Lord Ritchie. Mr. Neville Chamberlain was born in Birmingham—and so was his brother, Sir Austen, who was Chancellor thirty years ago. London can claim David Lloyd George, who was born in Manchester, Gladstone, and Sir Robert Peel.

Queer Animals In Oxford Zoo

Cat Has Fully-Developed Fur-Covered Wings

The curator of the Oxford Zoo has been puzzled by the arrival of a black and white cat which has on its back fully-developed fur-covered wings, with which it is stated it can fly. It was seen in a local garden to move from the ground to a beam, to which it could not have leaped, using its wings in a manner similar to a bird. The wings grow just in front of the hindquarters and measure a foot from tip to tip. The curator says he is somewhat sceptical whether the cat can really fly in the sense that a bird does. It is possible that its hindquarters are powerful and that it can spring to a considerable height, aided by its wings.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to let Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the town to tell her "something she should know about Peter." Gus tells Camilla Peter is a cheat, that he only wants her money, and that he, Gus, loves her himself. At that moment Peter appears on the scene and smokes Gus flat. On the way home from the party Camilla tells Peter they are going to do something about their problem. She decides that they are to be married, and until Peter establishes himself, go on living their separate lives. Above Peter's protests she carries her point.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XV.

When Peter returned to his room, he found that Gus had been there and gone again, taking with him all that belonged to him and several articles belonging to Peter, as well. In the days which followed, he missed various of his possessions as he needed them. His tie, a lately acquired shirt, his work jacket and notebook. In lieu of these, Gus had left his own discarded belongings.

But Peter dismissed such trivial matters from his thoughts and devoted them to ways and means of justifying his marriage to Camilla as soon as school closed in June. All their plans were made. They would be married quietly and keep it secret, if possible. Peter had wanted to take a studio somewhere near the museum, where he could work alone and devote all his time to studying and modelling. They agreed that he should do just that. Camilla had planned to remain with the Hoyts during the summer, while she looked for a position. Beyond that, everything was undecided. Her own family had suggested that she might return to them, but she had no desire now to share a home and family which had discarded her once. True, it has been done in the interest of her welfare, but she resented it, nevertheless.

A more attractive plan for her, she thought, would be to share a room somewhere near town with her younger sister, Rose, who already was a fine clerk in a downtown office.

"I've always liked Rose best, since I've known my family," she told Peter. "Of course, we aren't much alike, having lived in such different environments, but we agree pretty well and she's a wise little kid. I think I could learn a lot from her and teach her things too. It might be good for both of us, you see?"

Peter favored that plan for her living at home, so it was tentatively arranged that as soon as Camilla could no longer work alone and could take a room somewhere together. But upon no account was Peter to consider himself obligated to her as a husband. Everything was to be sacrificed to his career except their occasional pleasure of seeing each other and sharing inexpensive recreations such as they would have done under other circumstances. There was some discussion about confiding their plans to Mrs. Hoyt.

"But why should we?" Camilla asked. "The way she is throwing me out upon the mercy of the world, she can't care much what becomes of me. I'll leave there soon, anyway, and it would only make her more disagreeable until I do. If she were my mother or really concerned for my future, it would be different. As for my own mother, she never has been concerned about me, except to give me away because it would provide a chance for me to live in luxury. Quere to have two mothers and yet have none really. I feel like a half-breed, as it is."

"You're worth a million," Peter told her.

"To you," she reminded him.

"Well, it had better be to me," he laughed happily. "How about the honeymoon?"

"We shall have that when you are famous and we can sail around the world," blithely.

"By that time, you will be a gentle old lady with white hair and I shall be a crotchety old fossil," he warned her.

"I'll wait! But, Peter, you might get your new studio ready to celebrate our wedding!"

For which he applied himself to every odd task he could find that would add a few dollars to his depleted account. He had hoped to take one of the larger studios in the Craft building, but he kept this cherished ambition to himself and managed a similar one in the Annex Hall, in the rear. At least, it was very much better than the shabby rooming house where he had been living, and where he would have had taken Camilla for anything in the world.

developed which made it necessary. But for her sake as well as his own, just now, the braver, wiser course was the one on which they had agreed.

Even so, she was a magnificent little sport to take such a chance with him. Like a youngster who refuses to look at the mince pie while he obediently eats the bread pudding which his mother recommends for him. Well, he never would forget her loyalty, he vowed, and resolved to make it up to her some day. He hoped that day would not be too far away.

As for Camilla, her felicity clothed her like a shining garment. Her joy of anticipation could not have been greater had she approached a marriage of prominence and wealth, to be celebrated with a royal wedding. Her manner continued to mystify Mrs. Hoyt, who rather envied anyone whose slightest word or action could convey so much delight. Her beauty glowed warmly, as a flower had opened expectantly to the promise of its fulfillment.

She laughed and sang about the house she had done in those years before she had learned the truth about her family and position. She was much more amiable and confidential with Mrs. Hoyt. At the same time that person knew she was concealing from her her most intimate experience in her life.

"Camilla," she ventured one evening, "it can't be that you are interested in this—Mr. Anson?"

"Why shouldn't I be interested in him? He is the most popular fellow in school," she replied calmly enough, while her heart beat furiously at the mention of Peter's name. Of course, he was in her thoughts constantly, but it startled her to hear his name spoken by anyone else. Mrs. Anson soon gave up the subject.

"Of course, but being popular at National is of little significance. Such prominence can mean nothing. You must not waste your attentions upon a man who is not already established."

Anger swelled within Camilla's breast, but she had learned to control her thoughts and speech in the presence of this dominating woman whom no words could move. Opposing her was like insisting that you were stronger than a stone wall and trying to batter it down with your feeble force. Better to admit that it was there and later climb over the obstacle quietly.

"I don't intend to waste my attentions upon any man," Camilla replied enigmatically. Which was true enough. Any attention which she gave to Peter was not wasted, she thought with a secret happiness, and continued thoughtfully. "My greatest concern now is a position. You know, mother, I'm beginning to thank you a lot for the arrangements you made for my future. You couldn't have done better, because I am going to love and respect and love him in this great adventure into which you have forced me."

"But my dear, my plans did not involve your taking a position. I reared you so that you could marry wealth and position—and you may, at any time you wish. Terry called again to-day."

"I'm not at all interested in Terry. I am too busy to be wasting my time on a man like him," she repeated, with a chuckle. "Our class assignments are pretty heavy now and final exams in two weeks. All the time I can spare for social affairs will be occupied at school. By the way, are you coming to see me presented with my certificate of entry into the world of affairs? Really, you'll be surprised, quite really, because I am not the only lady of leisure who got along with the ambition bug. Axis Werth, you know, and Muriel Ames are in the same class. The difference is that they went to National to increase their chances of finding a man and I went to decrease my need of accepting one," she laughed.

"Camilla, you are incorrigible. You always have been a problem that grows no better with age and looking for a solution."

"Then you'll be rather glad to be rid of me, won't you?" she observed thoughtfully, with that inherent twinge of pain which everyone experiences at the thought of leaving the place that has been home.

Even Mrs. Hoyt's practical voice was a little wistful when she replied, "No, I shall miss you very much, Camilla. I wish there were some way but let us say no more about it. You will not be leaving for several

How much would happen she little knew, thought Camilla. Nor did Camilla know what would happen, else her optimism, which is the inevitable glow of youth, might have drooped sadly.

Agriculture In Canada

Is Chief Single Industry Of People In Dominion

Agriculture, including stock raising and horticulture, is the chief single industry of the Canadian people, employing according to the latest available figures 28.7 per cent of the total gainfully occupied population and 33.9 per cent, or over one-third of the gainfully occupied males. In addition it provides the raw material for many Canadian manufacturers, and its products in raw or manufactured form constitute a very large percentage of Canadian exports.

Almost Instant Relief From Neuralgia

1. I WILL HAVE TO GET A TAXI AND GO HOME. I'VE DEVELOPED A TERRIBLE ATTACK OF NEURALGIA.

2. 20 MINUTES LATER — IT'S WONDERFUL HOW QUICKLY MY NEURALGIA WENT. THAT ASPIRIN CERTAINLY WORKS FAST.

YES, ISN'T IT WONDERFUL?

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, etc. The fastest safe relief. It is said, get dissolved.

These results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after reaching the moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Aspirin is the only glass here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly by you swallow it. And there is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPHIN's quick relief, be sure the name HAYES is in the form of a cross in one every tablet of Aspirin.

WHY ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop an Aspirin Tablet in a glass of water. Note that bubbles rise from the bottom. In a few minutes, it has started to dissolve.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Time is its fast friend.

Sunshine Relieves Alberta Suffering

Always generous in their response to appeals in behalf of the distressed,
the people of Alberta recognize that this winter will witness a greater need than ever before. Various causes, which are so well known that they do not require any stressing, are perpetuating a condition which is probably the most tragic in the history of the province. Thousands of persons will have to be assisted with food, clothing and the other necessities of life. Everyone who can help with cash donations, with food, clothing, boots and shoes, fuel or anything else which can be used in the household, is earnestly invited to contribute.

An organization which has labored faithfully for 21 years to make easier
the lot of those who are sick or destitute, is the Calgary Herald Sunshine Society, which operates throughout the year and which makes a special effort to take comfort to those in distress at Christmas time when it distributes its hundreds of hampers. Last Christmas it sent out close to 400 splendid hampers.

So far this year Sunshine has aided more than 24,475 persons in Calgary and Southern Alberta, the great majority being children. These are cases for which relief is not available from other sources. Through its own records, those of the Bureau of Confidential Exchange, and with the co-operation of municipal authorities, overlapping is guarded against.
In fact every case is investigated and dealt with on its merits. Sunshine makes sure that every cent contributed for relief is expended wisely for this purpose.

Sunshine appeals for help so that it may carry on its work. Cash is especially welcome, but if this cannot be given, grain, potatoes or other vegetables, poultry, eggs, or any other form of food, clothing,
underwear, boots, shoes, blankets,
quilts, etc., will be appreciated.

Those who wish to help are invited to communicate with "Sunshine,"
care of the Calgary Herald.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

"Daddy," she said, "who owns the sky?"
And softly I answered, "you and I."
"Who owns the stars so bright and clear?"
And I smiled and answered, "we do,
my dear."
"Who owns the sun, and the moon,
and the breeze?"
"Baby," I said, "we own all of these."
"Who owns the field with the pretty flowers?"
"Well, just for the present that field
is ours."
"Who owns the birds that are singing near?"
Said I, "They are every one yours,
my dear."
"Then, daddy, we're rich," said my babe to me.
"For we own everything we can see."
"Yes," I answered, "that's very true,
We are all of us rich if only know;
We are all of us rich, the great and small.
In the vast possessions God gives us
all."

Checked Careers of Three Girls.

The engrossing story of three girls starting as classmates in the same public school, and the varying fortunes that cause their paths through life to intersect ten years later, is told in a fascinating manner in First National's production, "Three on a Match," featuring Joan Blon-
del, Warren William, Ann Dvorak and Betty Davis, which opens at the Opera House for a two day engagement tomorrow evening, and matinee on Saturday.

Three more widely-differing girls
than the trio portrayed in this vivid drama would be hard to imagine.
One is the class beauty, a girl of wealth and position. A second is the honor girl of her class. The third is the school "bad girl," tomboy, hoyden and mischief maker.

When they meet again, the class beauty is the spoiled wife of a wealthy lawyer who adores her. The student has become a successful secretary. The tomboy, after a checked career that has taken her through a reform school, is a vivid creature of Broadway's night life.

How the destinies of the three girls themselves out is the drama
that "Three on a Match" unfolds.

Alberta Master Farmers.

Congratulations are due to two farmers of the Edmonton district
for having been awarded the Master
Farmer's Medal of Alberta for 1933.
They are Mr. Charles Ellett, who farms 12-mts. southeast of Edmonton and Mr. W. S. Walker, who farms about the same distance west of that city. The Master Farmer Movement came to Western Canada some years ago through the medium of the Nor-West Farmer, of Winnipeg, and a number of Alberta farmers
which are given to those farmers who in the opinion of the board of judges have been outstandingly successful as farmers and citizens. The winners for 1933 have been residents of Alberta for many years. Mr. Ellett, who in his youth was a jewelry salesman in London, England, homesteaded on his present farm location nearly 30 years ago. Mr. Walker,
a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland,
came to Western Canada in 1906,
and has built up a fine farm home
at Winterburn, near Edmonton.

"Kritiks' Korner."

The past week has emphasized the need of some satisfactory method of keeping our crosswalks clean.
The best way is to raise them above the level of the street. Until this can be done some of our unemployed
should be given a job keeping them
shoveled out during the bad weather.

We note with pleasure the opening of another new place of business.
We have noticed that nearly all who start up in business here, even in a small way, continue in business.
There are very few who do not establish a good trade. Didsbury is a good town to do business in. Some may think that we already have too many business establishments,
but that is not true, we need more and better stores. We bespeak a success for this new enterprise.

What is needed most here is a good, live Board of Trade. There is plenty of business to be had today, but we must GO AFTER IT. The people will not come to Didsbury to trade of their own volition—they must be attracted here. The way to get business is to advertise, and this applies to the town as well as to the individual. We need some sort of a "Booster Club" to get things going.

The article by an anonymous writer
appearing in a recent issue leads us to ask if the town should not remove these unsightly places, of which the article speaks, from the business district and build public rest-rooms?
One of the best means of attracting business to any town is to provide plenty of parking space and clean rest-rooms.

We note with much pleasure that a number of suggestions from the "Kritik's Korner" have been carried out.

British Bacon Market

For the first time in history the World's Greatest Bacon Market has granted a definite quota to Canadian Bacon Producers, under Controlled Imports to Assure a Steady Market. Canada's quota is 280,000,000 lbs. annually.

The Key to This Market is Quality

Alberta was second in 1932 among all provinces to total hog marketings, but only eight hogs in every 100 marketed were suitable for the British trade.

Not More Hogs, but Better Hogs

What is needed is not greater numbers, but a greater proportion of the Select Bacon Type required by the British Market.

Policies to Encourage production of High Quality Bacon Hogs Suitable for Overseas, have been adopted by the Alberta Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Federal Government, Railways and Packers. These include better housing and exchange of off-type sows by the farmers for selected gilts from the packing plants.

Mountain View Notes

The monthly meeting of the Mountain View W. V. was held at the home of Mrs. M. Woods on Thursday Nov. 16, in place of Community Hall as planned. After the business session Mrs. MacNeil gave a good paper on Child Welfare. It was arranged to hold the December meeting at the home of Mrs. Wm. McCoy when Mrs. Ranton will give a paper on the League of Nations.

A well attended dance was held in Community Hall on Friday last. These dances we understand are to be held every two weeks at this Hall. A Calgary Orchestra furnished splendid music for the occasion.

Miss D. Brown, Miss Snyder and Miss Alice Pearson, teachers at Main, Neapolis and Roschub schools, attended the recent Olds rural teachers' convention.

Grain Exhibits Chicago and Toronto.

Alberta exhibitors in the grain classes at Chicago and Toronto this fall will not be as numerous as in former years, but they will offer some strong competition nevertheless. At Chicago there will be about sixty entries, including 23 in the wheat classes and 14 in the oats classes. Only one former wheat champion, Joseph Smith, of Wolf Creek, is exhibiting there this year, but a number of junior grain club members have entered the Chicago ring, with high hopes. At Toronto there will be 26 entries in the grain classes, including 15 in the junior club classes. Last year it was a junior grain club member, Paul Sebastian, of Wembley, who won the Canadian championship in oats.

WEDDING*MORGAN—MOORE.

A lovely wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's father on Friday, November 10th, 1933, at 9 o'clock p.m., when Helen Jessie, youngest daughter of Mr. William Moore, of Hartmann, became the bride of Mr. Trevor Edwin Morgan, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Morgan, also of Hartmann.

The living room, tastefully decorated in pink and white, with an arch of white wedding bells and pink streamers, formed a beautiful setting for the ceremony, performed by the Rev. E. S. Matthews, of Edmonton, district superintendent of the Church of the Nazarenes.

To the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. J. Morgan, aunt of the bridegroom, the lovely bride entered the room on the arm of her father. Her gown was of white silk tulle and a short lace jacket with long, flowing sleeves. Her veil of silk-embroidered net was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of opelia roses.

Miss Florence Thompson, who attended the bride, wore floor-length frock of pale blue crepe. Her hat and accessories were of white, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Jack Morgan, cousin of the bridegroom, acted as groomsmen. Following the ceremony a buffet-luncheon was served to the 65 guests who were received by Mrs. Jenner, of Calgary, sister of the bride, wearing in pale grey crepe and wearing a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Homer Moore, brother of the bride, who was unable to be present, telephoned his congratulations from Los Angeles, where he is engaged in aviation.

Immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Morgan left for a short honeymoon in Calgary, the bride travelling in a smart suit of navy blue wool. Upon their return they will reside at Red Deer, where they will attend the Northern Bible College.

Initiative

Initiative, or the lack of it, the development or the denial of it, appear to be quite common subjects of discussion in these days of the Great Depression. On the one hand, people are heard to say that adoption of the programme of the Socialists would result in the destruction of individual initiative, while, on the other hand, exponents of Socialism ask what initiative is left to people these days, and what initiative has an unemployed man substituting on Government relief.

Both are wrong. Socialism could not destroy individual initiative even if it would, because initiative is an attribute of the human individual, and it can be, has been, and always will be developed under any conceivable kind of government, or system, or set of circumstances. Initiative is God-given and cannot be destroyed, although its expression in definite action may be hindered, even for a time prevented.

Nor is it correct to say that present day conditions are destructive of initiative, and that there is no room for its exercise by many people at this time. Rather, the reverse is true. Necessity is said to be the mother of invention, and invention is only possible where initiative is first displayed. The necessities of the present are, therefore, an urge to greater rather than less initiative.

Nor only so, but evidence is not lacking, rather it is available on every hand, demonstrating the fact that greater initiative is being manifested by thousands of hard pressed individuals than they ever thought of exercising in the days of prosperity.

After all, what is initiative? A simple dictionary definition says it is an introductory act or step; the first active procedure in any enterprise; power of taking the lead or of originating. That is, a baby shows initiative when it begins to creep, and move independently when it takes its first toddling steps, and from that time onward through life. It cannot be destroyed.

But it can be encouraged, or discouraged; its development can be assisted or retarded. Parents and teachers have a very great responsibility in this respect. Employers, too, have an obligation in much the same way towards their employees, and if they are far-seeing they will realize that it is to their own advantage, as well as promoting the advancement of the employee, to encourage and assist their workers to display initiative in the tasks allotted to them. While it may be true, as sometimes charged, that Capitalism operates in some ways to lessen initiative, it is also true that in quite as many other ways Capitalism has promoted initiative.

Governments, too, under whatever system may be in vogue in a country, may develop the initiative, not only of individual citizens but of a whole people and country. Too much paternalism in a home is a deadly influence upon the development of the initiative of a child, weakening its self-reliance, and sapping its courage. In like manner, too much paternalism in government operates as a deadly influence upon the citizenship of a country, weakening the self-reliance of the people, and sapping their courage to meet the inevitable obstacles and difficulties which sooner or later in life must be met and it success is to be achieved, overcome.

Parents should not be expected to do everything for their children; teachers should not do things for their pupils but train them to do every thing they can for themselves, only so is character and ability developed; employers should not look upon their workers as mere cogs in a machine, but as thinking, intelligent human beings with personalities and abilities and the powers of their own to develop and use for the common good of all. Governments are the creation of people in the mass to do for them what they, as individuals, cannot alone do for themselves, but Governments were never intended to perform those services which the individual can and ought to do for himself and herself.

Referring back to our dictionary definition of initiative, that it is the power of taking the lead or of originating, the truth must be impressed upon us that, in the final analysis, it is the individual that must originate. In any great enterprise, or undertaking, in any large corporation, it is some one individual who first originated the idea to the development of which the organized forces of all are finally directed. Governments are only groups of individuals, and their policies have their birth in the minds of individuals, and their acts of administration are but the carrying into effect of a policy resulting from the initiative of some individual in the first instance, the wisdom and value of which is ultimately recognized by all.

A man or woman lacking in initiative never gets very far. If they are content to let others do their thinking, study and thinking for them, then they will never become educated. If they are willing to lean upon others, and rely upon the judgment of others for decisions that may have to be made, then they will always be dependents, and never independent. If they refuse to exert themselves, to express themselves, they will go through life bereft of the influence they might and ought to have exercised upon their times and followers.

Initiative is a power, let it be repeated, that all possess. But like all powers it must be used, exercised, brought into play. Only so is it of any value, and only so can it be developed, and made to be the rich thing in the life of the individual it ought to be, and only so can the rewards it is designed to bring to its possessor be won. It is a great gift, an imperishable gift, which should be highly prized, never surrendered, nor allowed to fall into disuse.

There is no substitute for potato in the Russian are now harvesting agriculture. It cannot be replaced in the diet. It would be interesting the plant's economy by soils or any to know what the emu was used for before crosswords were invented.

Science Comes To Aid

Can Help Narcotic Addicts To Overcome The Habit

Science has found a solution to the problem of the narcotic addict who attempts to free himself of the habit, anaesthetists of the United States and Canada were told at their annual congress recently in Chicago.

Three New York anaesthetists related their success in blocking nerves by means of alcohol injections effective for days and even weeks. This relieves the patient of the torture of fever, nausea, neuralgia and other symptoms inevitably associated with stopping the use of a narcotic.

Most of the cases were those of persons who had contracted the habit as the result of intense pain during sickness or injury. Dr. M. B. Greene of New York explained, adding that it was different when the subject used narcotics from desire and was not interested in breaking the habit.

ARM IN SLING WITH NEURITIS

A "token of gratification" this woman says she is giving when she writes of her relief from neuritis.

"For twelve months I have had neuritis in my arm, and up till the last two weeks have had to carry it in a sling. Since then I have abandoned my sling, am able to sleep undisturbed, and can perform household duties that previously I would not have done. These benefits I have received from Kruischen Suits. This has all happened in six weeks, and I am optimistic enough to think that in another fortnight I shall have said goodbye to neuritis. And for all that this is a testimonial if you choose to me it is a token of gratification."

Neuritis is a result of impurities in the blood. And it is impure blood circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues, that causes those excruciating pains Kruischen Suits can be safely trusted to set the matter right. Because Kruischen contains just what Nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, normal condition.

Sees Marked Improvement

United States Banker Finds Conditions in Britain Better

Quite talkative about the marked improvement in British business conditions was J. P. Morgan, United States banker, on his return to New York from an extended visit to Great Britain.

While silent on various questions put to him concerning the domestic situation here, the N.B.A. new banking laws and inflation, Mr. Morgan did emphasize that England had turned the corner away from hard times.

New Submarine Chaser

The first Royal Air Force flying boat carrying a quick-firing gun, capable of firing shells in addition to ordinary machine guns, has been completed by the Blackburn Airplane Company at Drough. The craft is designed principally for submarine chasing.

The new gun, which is mounted on a rotary turret in the forward cockpit, can fire 100 rounds per minute one and one-half pound shells over an effective range of 1,500 yards. The shells are held in clips of five. The connection from firing all five rounds in quick time is said to temporarily reduce the forward speed of the flying boat by ten miles per hour. The experiment of mounting the gun whose recoil—representing a pull of 1,600 pounds which has to be absorbed in the boat's structure—will be watched with keen interest by air forces of several nations which are concerned with the same problem.

The machine will be able to fly 132 miles per hour with a maximum range of 1,500 miles. The wing spread is 97 feet and the length is 70 feet. It stands nearly 26 feet high. The new ship, named "Blackburn Perth," is one of four to be stationed at Malta.

Does Not Produce Chancellors

Only Two In Last Hundred Years Born In Scotland

Where do the Chancellors come from? Scotland claims as many of the Premiers and Archbishops of Canterbury of recent years that it would not be surprising to find the Northern Kingdom providing a good proportion of Chancellors of the Exchequer as well, especially in view of the Scottish genius for looking after the hawbees. In reality, however, only two Chancellors in the last 100 years were born in Scotland—Sir Robert Home and the first Lord Ritchie. Mr. Neville Chamberlain was born in Birmingham, and so was his brother, Sir Austen, who was Chancellor thirty years ago. London can claim Disraeli and a number of others. Among the counties, Yorkshire can boast of three great names: Lord Snowden, the late Lord Oxford and Asquith, and Sir William Harcourt. But Lancashire can show three who are possibly still more famous—Mr. Lloyd George, who was born in Manchester, Gladstone, and Sir Robert Peel.

Queer Animals In Oxford Zoo

Cat Has Fully-Developed Fur-Covered Wings

The curator of the Oxford Zoo has been puzzled by the arrival of a black and white cat which has on its back fully-developed fur-covered wings, with which it is stated it can fly. It was seen in a local garden to move from the ground to a beam, to which it could not have leaped, using its wings in a manner similar to a bird. The wings grow just in front of the hindquarters and measure a foot from tip to tip. The curator says he is somewhat sceptical whether the cat can really fly in the sense that a bird does. It is possible that its hindquarters are powerful and that it can spring to a considerable height, aided by its wings.
